A Dream That Changed My Life

“Only when the last tree has died, the last river has been poisoned and the last fish has been caught, will we realize that we cannot eat money.”

I have a dream to live in the world that is not poisoned by people’s factories and where natural resources are not abused, in a world where people do not over cut forests, poison rivers, seas, and oceans, and kill animals just for fun. I want to live in the world where I will breathe air which smells of flowers and sea breeze, where will I eat natural food and drink tasty and fresh water. I love to listen to birds’ singing and observe the beautiful sundown. I am sure when nature gets very sad, all kinds of convulsions happen.

I thought about it very much, and once I saw a dream...

I saw a dream about being a superhero FAWE (Fire, Air, Water, and Earth). In my dream I helped people with my superpowers. I am able to govern the main powers of the world. I can rule over water, fire, air, and earth.

I can reduce or even stop all kinds of storms, hurricanes, tropic cyclones, and tornadoes with my air power. With my water power, I may hold up ocean storms, drought, tsunamis and floods, heavy rains, sleets, and harmful snowfalls. I can prevent earthquakes and rock-slides by my earth power. Forest fires, city fires, volcano eruptions, and lightnings can be halted by my fire power. If something happens in any part of the world, I immediately fly to this place in my costume and using my powers do not allow any harm to people, animals, and nature. My costume is made from metal vibranium. Vibranium is a special metal that reflects any strikes by vibration. It is green with the signs of four elements: fire, air, water, and earth. I like this color very much because, it is the color of nature, spring, peace, and life. I wish our planet would not lose the green color. Besides there are engines in my boots and lasers in my hands. But if I don’t want to be seen, I can become invisible. And, all my powers, I use only to help people and the world.

However, not all dreams come true, and I know that I will never become a superhero. I live in the real world, but still I can help to save it, even without superpowers. For example, I can reuse some things that are broken or thrown into the garbage. Furthermore, I can or to separate glass, plastic and food scraps trash into individual garbage cans. Also, for one of my Conventions I made a collection display with small pieces of fur of different animals that are usually used in the fur trade, to attract attention of a new generation to the problem of the animal abuse and urge people to use other materials instead of fur. This dream has changed my life; it made me feel helpful.

They say that nature saves us, so we have to save nature. Let our miracles happen in our life and make the world better. We people can make these miracles true, if we only want to.
